CITY MEN BETTER PHYSICALLY THAN THOSE FROM COUNTRY

According to Investigations of a Bavarian Army Surgeon.

Berlin, Nov. 11.—City men are "better" physically than those from the country, according to the investigations of a Bavarian army surgeon, who writes in the Munich Medical Weekly, the result of his examination of more than 10,000 men. The greater physical fitness, especially as to the suppleness of body, of the city men over those from the rural districts was striking among the younger men. Functional and organic heart affections existed in about equal degree in the two classes. The farmer boys were far inferior to the city recruits in carriage and in the development of the bones and muscles. The most aggravated cases of curvature of the spine, flat feet and varicose veins were found in the country contingent.

Cuban Sugar Growers Sanguine.

Havana, Cuba, Nov. 11.—Seasonable rains have raised high the expectations of the Cuban sugar planters and reports of the growing cane are coming in from all parts of the island. Always fry with Cottolene Whatever you fry with Cottolene is delicious and digestible. The true flavor of chicken, fish, potatoes, or any other fried foods is enhanced.

Cottolene has done much to do away with the old prejudice against fried foods. As it does not soak into the food, it performs fully the real function of a frying agent—it cooks the food and adds not only to its flavor but to its wholesomeness.

Cottolene

For more than a quarter of a century Cottolene has held its own place, in a class by itself. There is no substitute for it.

Always remember to use one-third less Cottolene than you would of butter or lard.

Since Cottolene does not absorb tastes or odors, it may be used over and over again for frying. Heat it slowly.

Cottolene is packed in pails of various sizes for your convenience. Arrange with your grocer for a regular supply.

WATCHING FIRE IN BETHLEHEM PLANT—SCENE AT GUN SHOP

Persons generally well informed on conditions in the great munitions plant of the Bethlehem Steel company at South Bethlehem, Pa., estimate the loss in the machine shop fire at from $1,000,000 to $1,500,000. In the burned building are said to have been $800,000 worth of guns being built for the allies and they are supposed to have been destroyed. The great American munition plant is now working on contracts worth millions of dollars from Great Britain, France and Russia. Since the outbreak of the war and the flooding of this country with munition contracts, no other corporation engaged in the war contract business has suffered so serious a loss, perhaps, as sustained by the great organization of which Charles M. Schwab is the head.

The building that was destroyed was one of the boring mills and was a combination of the old pattern shop and machine shop No. 4. Shortly after the war started and when munition contracts began to flow west the two buildings were combined and increased from one to four stories in height. The building was equipped with equipment necessary entailed an expenditure to a well known citizen of Bethlehem, of $3,000,000.
